Using the vocabulary she learns daily, she can build or make sentences very well. Her understanding of the vocabulary is good. She has outstanding English language proficiency.	The student participates actively in class but she also enjoys playing more than learning sometimes. To maintain her focus, the teacher advises providing some enjoyable and relevant activities or games. She finds it challenging to pronounce several letters as well. In order to avoid difficulty pronouncing challenging words, the student must practice tongue twisters. She has academic talent, but she needs to pay more attention.
